THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L., SR.

The division of the Gold Flat School District has been avoided by the narrow margin of one vote on the board of supervisors, who pointed out among other things that while the board was, in law, the arbiter in the matter of making a decision, it was a controversy that really should be settled by the district itself, and by the board of school trustees.

* * *

The chief point, we think, made by the proponents of division was the hazards involved when a considerable number of young children were obliged to cross a busy highway between Nevada City and Grass Valley twice each day. There were of course other considerations, not the least of which was the difference in tax assessments between the Gold Flat district and Grass Valley district, to which the proponents of division wish to annex the western end of the Gold Flat district, and the hard fact the Gold Flat district even with a $2.06 tax rate is unable to do very much in the way of repairing and enlarging the present school buildings.

* * *

It is notable, perhaps, that the two supervisors most familiar with Gold Flat school problems voted for the division of the district. Nevada City's supervisor, Cary Arbogast, was deeply concerned with the safety of thte children, some of whom cross the highway twice a day on their way to the school and returning home. Traffic on the Nevada City and Grass Valley highways, in the last ten years has greatly increased. The hazards presented by young children crossing them daily is a very real one.

* * *

However, the Gold Flat school board assured the supervisors that they propose to abolish this hazard by collecting the children above the highways and bringing them down to school in buses. Another method of securing a greater measure of safety is the establishment of school patrols among the older boys. This would mean training by the State Highway Patrol, and we believe it could be accomplished with little difficulty. Under strictly urban conditions it has worked out extremely well.

* * *

The division of the district we think was ill-advised in at least one respect. The dividing line was fixed at four-tenths of a mile from the Nevada City limits. It was proposed to take the children from this district about 4 miles tot Grass Valley schools. This would seem like a waste of gas and mechanical equipment, since Nevada City schools are on a parity with Grass Valley schols. If Gold Flat School District is to be divided it certainly should be on a basis on proximity to Nevada City and Grass Valley school buildings which the children will attend.

* * *

Around every school, especially rural schools, there gathers an aura of traditions, legends and sentimental feeling, so that whenever a controversy arises it becomes bitter. Gold Flat school is probably one of the oldest schools in California. Those who defend the status quo of the school are aided by a ghostly legion. The great souls who graduated from the school and departed, fight on the side of the defenders. Gold Flat school is rich in these unseen but very real factors. The late comers, the "new" people, who have moved into the district, often from urban districts where the schools are much better equipped than here, are the ones generally speaking, who want a better school for their children than Gold Flat presently provides. They are unwilling to wait, unwilling even to help in building Gold Flat into a better school. The reason they do not wish to wait and help build the old school into something efficient and good, is because the problem is immediate. Their children are being educated now ,each school term that slips by is influencing their children's future, their opportunities to lead a successful, happy life.

* * *

Usually schools can keep pace with rising populations, because the rise is gradual and adjustments can be made, but Gold Flat has jumped from around 50 or 60 pupils to an expected 140 at the opening of the school term this week. For many years it has been a two or three teacher school. Now it will require five teachers to give the children adequate classroom attention. The school population has outgrown the real estate valuation. The district cannot be bonded enough to give it adequate buildings even with state aid.

* * *

To us it seems as if the only adequate remedy for this situation is to divide the district, giving Nevada City that portion which is nearest to it, and the western portion nearest to Grass Valley, to the Grass Valley district. Where no horses or buggies were available, the children walked to school, sometimes for miles. We doubt if it hurt their health.

But in these modern competitive times children need their wits sharpened by a good education more than they need exercise, if they are to get anywhere in the world. Let us roll them to good schools on rubber tires, hire the best teachers we can, and do our share toward outfitting their minds to make their way in a complex and wonderful civilization.

SPORTSMEN'S EXHIBIT HIGHLIGHT OF FAIR

SACRAMENTO: Bear, deer and mink, live and stuffed, will form part of the exhibit entered by the Associated Sportsmen of California during the 11-day California State Fair which opened Thursday and will extend through September 12, it was nnounced today by Ned Green, secretary-manager of the Fair.

The exhibit, located in the northwest section of the grounds on the site occupied last year by the State Departement of Natural Resources, is now nearing completion and will serve to demonstrate work of the organization in the conservation of fish and game.

A flowing stream wall harbor trout and other fish. In the rear will be a cage holding a live bear and smaller cages in which mink and other animals will be displayed. A woodland scene has been created with stuffed animals peeping through the trees.

In front of the log cabin, which will display pictures among other things showing the association's work, will be a camp scene with figures adding to the realism of the exhibit. It is the organization's aim, according to those in charge, to call to the attention of all the importance of conserving fish and game and the proper method of conducting a camp in the state's great recreational areas.

CHINCHILLAS

Live chinchillas and mink, two of the world's most valuable furbering animals, will be shown for the first time together in the United States during the 11-day Fair.

The chinchillas and mink will be brought to Sacramento by Willis D. Parker of Hayward, owner of several chinchilla farms, and an authority on the little animals which had their origin in the Andes, became practically extinct, and are staging a comeback in the United States under exert management.

The chinchillas, valued at approximately $1,000 per pair, may be raised at an average cost of $2 a year for feeding each animal, according to Parker, but must hve suitable climatic conditions which are available in California. They are tame and make fine pets.

However, the mink are directly the opposite for they are naturally ferocious and are never tamed. The mink may not be handled safely but are splendid fur-bearers and are valuable for that reason.

Parker will have his exhibit in the Industrial and Machinery Building close to the main gate, and will have not only chinchillas and mink, but will display costly furs, one of which will be a sable neckpiece made from genuine Russian sable.

GOLD DIGGER'S TRAIL

Charles Scott Haley

Next morning I spent thirty cents in "baker's stuff" and bought our tickets. The buns were eaten before we were a hundred yards away from the pier. Noon came and the other passengers piled out for lunch, while we three sat around the deck and licked our chops. At six in the evening down near Port Costa at the mouth of the Sacramento, same business. We were naturally a hungry lot of youngsters, anyway.

At ten that evening, we docked at San Francisco. I had ten cents (ferry fare in those days), Boots had ten cents, and Tip had an old unused ferry check. We took the late train for Berkeley, got off at Dwight Way, and walked up the hill to our house. Summer session was on, and half a dozen of the gang were living in the house to save rent.

At midnight we walked in on them, and turned the house out. They needed no instruction. Down to the kitchen they went and dug up all the eggs and hotcake flour in the house. We three rivalled Black Sambo and his hungry parents.

I lost track of the number of hotcakes, but I know I ate eight eggs before I started on them.

And so began my education and my pilgrimage in search of more.

TO A WATERED LAND

That same summer that we completed our trek in unavailing search of a job, I was laid up with blood poisoning from an infected heel for several months. My two partners had gone back to college by the time I recovered, and I decided to make a new start for Nevada.

One of my classmates had written me from Blair, near Tonopah, where a new mill was being built and a large mine was developing. This was known as the Mary mine. He told me that we could rent a cottage together and run our own bachelor establishment, thereby saving money. As he was planning to be married the next year, this was an important item.

This time, I found a job, up at the Mary mine, as roustabout, at four dollars per day. They were installing a compressor at the time, and the first thing I had to do with my college training was to accompany some Wops out to an old manure pile and load sacks of dry compost on our backs for use in covering the concrete as it was completed in the forms, to keep it from freezing.

This educational occupation naturally did not particularly appeal to me, but I watched my chance. The master mechanic who was installing the compressor—a very heavy piece of machinery—was using several helpers on his bull gang. I gradually got in the way of being around whenever help was required, and was soon adopted by him as a regular member of his crew. My humble Italian friends looked at me reproachfully as they strode off with their sacks on their backs, but I had earned myself a promotion.

My friend from college soon secured a better job as assayer at the Valcalda mine, some four miles further

WM. MULLIS NAMED TO CITY COUNCIL

NEVADA CITY: William Mullis, laundry owner and war veteran, was elected by the city council Thursday night to take the seat on the seat on the council from which I. C. Bell recently resigned. Mullis has been active in civic affairs since his discharge from the army.

Charles Kitts of Town Talk appeared before the city council to complain that a policeman had acted in a disrespectful manner toward his wife. He asked permission to double park his pick-up truck in the vicinity of the bank in event there are no open parking spaces. He was told Broad Street is a state highway and it is against the law to double park on it.

Councilman Thomas Taylor then moved that Mayor Arthur Innis be authorized to investigate the complaint against the policeman, and if the charge of disrespect was substantiated, order an apology sent Mrs.Kitts.

Repairs on the firehouse on Broad Street up to $650 in cost were authorized. Lyman Straine, certified public accountant of Sacramento ,was empowered to audit the city books every year hereafter instead of every two years.

The ordinance introducted in July under which it is proposed to issue licenses to so-called amusement slot machines was laid over until September 16th, in order to give the new members a chance to study it.

SAN JUAN FIRE BURNS 70 ACRES

The state division of Forestry sent two pumpers and crews at 2:20 o'clock and had the fire out at 5 o'clock. The scene was patrolled overnight.

A forest fire that threatened valuable timber holdings near the Tahoe Sugar Pine Company's mill in Washington Friday was extinguished by the mill crew and soaked out by pumpers from the Tahoe National Forest Service. BATTERY CASE LEADS TO ARREST ON MURDER CHARGE

GRASS VALLEY: Ernest Abold was arrested a short time ago on a battery charge preferred by hs wife. He was fingerprinted and given a thirty day suspended sentence. A record of his fingerprints was sent to the State Bureau of Criminal Identification.

The police departments yesterday learned that Abold is an escaped murderer from Tennessee and is wanted under the names of John Padgett or Leo Anderson. He escaped from the Powell Prison Farm in Tennessee in May, 1938.

Since living in Grass Valley he married and now has a small child. Chief of Police Frank Knuckey wired the Tennessee authorities, following the rearrest of Abold, that they were holding him here, and asked for instructions. The return telegram asked them to continue holding him and stated they had applied for extradition papers.

Yesterday Abold said he would waive extradition proceedings and would return in an effort to "straighten things out."

VANDALS SHOOT BRACKET, ENDANGER FOREST PROTECTION

NEVADA CITY: Telephone communication between Washington and Big Bend Ranger Station was cut off yesterday because some hunter had shot off the glass bracket holding the wire, along the road from Tahoe-Ukiah Highway to Washington.

The shot severed the wire, Vane Pitney, Tahoe National Forest Fire Assistant, reported, on one of the worst days of the year so far as fire hazards are concerned. He and Gearge Crawford, communications technician, searched for hours before finding the shattered bracket.

"Besides being a violation of the law," said Pitney, "such vandalism is likely to cause delay in dispatching fire crews in event of a forest conflagration.

Five were caused by careless smokers, one by a campfire that got away, one by the prohibited burning of debris, one by spontaneous combustion of oily rags, another by blasting without a permit, and the last by dumping hot ashes in forest litter.

Overton Earl of Downieville was fine $50 in township court of Downieville, Sierra County, for burning debris withoutt a permit. The other cases are under investigation.

"Substance" is the subject of the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, September 12, with the Golden Text taken from Romans: "We are saved by hope: but hope that is seen is not hope: for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for? But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it" (8:24, 25).

Proverbs: "Doth not wisdom cry? and understanding put forth her voice? Unto you, men, I call; and my voice is to the sons of man. That I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill their treasures" (8:1, 4, 21).

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The substance, Life, Intelligence, Truth and Love, which constitute Deity, are reflected by His creation; and when we subordinate the false testimony of the corporeal senses to the facts of Science, we shall see this true likeness and reflection everywhere" (p. 516).

EMPLOYERS TO MEET AT TAHOE, HEAR CONGRESSMAN NIXON

"Cold War Treason" will be the subject of the address of Congressman Richard M. Nixon in his address at the conference of Western Employers at Lake Tahoe, September 10, 11, and 12, 1948. Congressman Nixon, because of his aggressiveness on the Un-American Committee of the House of Representatives has gained national attention during the current espionage investigations. The Fourth Annual Conference of Western Employers held at Lake Tahoe will be a particularly timely audience for Congressman Nixon's address. Employers have become particularly conscious of the infiltration of Communism in many critical situations throughout the West.

Carl Ivey, Chairman of the Nevada County Employers Council, commenting this morning on the Conference program stated: "This Tahoe Conference offers a great opportunity for large and small employers alike to discuss their problems directly with lawmakers. A group of Nevada County employers will attend."

AIR PARCEL POST NOW UNDER WAY

NEVADA CITY: With the inauguration of nationwide-world wide air parcel post September 1, the United States can boast of the most modern and expeditious delivery service in the world, according to Postmaster William Wasley of Nevada City.

The new highly specialized airborne service, enacted into law by the 80th Congress, will afford patrons of more that 42,000 post-offices in America and its possessions unexcelled shipping facilities. Transit time will be reduced to a fraction of that required by other modes of transportation.

Postmaster Wasley pointed out that air parcel post packages will receive the same particular consideration shown air mail in routing. In addition, identical door-step delivery will be given to air parcel post as is afforded other forms of mail, making the airborne mail service unique in every respect.

He added that distinct air parcel post stickers printed in red, white and blue and bearing the likeness of a winged package with the earth's globe underneath, will soon be available without cost at the Nevada City Post Office to apply to outgoing packages.

"With a scheduled plane taking off or landing within the United States on an average of every seven seconds around the clock, and an overseas-bound plane leaving our borders every 30 minutes, we stand ready to give our patrons the fastest parcel post service offered anywhere," Postmaster Wasley said.

While international air parcel post service has been available from the United States and its possessions for everal months, domestic airborne service is being launched for the first time in history.

Stolen Suit Discovered On Building Worker's Frame

GRASS VALLEY: Jesse Burwell, 43, employed by George Golvin in making alterations in the Grass Valley Laundry, was arrested on a charge of petty theft.

The alleged theft occurred after the cleaners had completed their day's work but had left the building open for Golvin's crew. When Burwell failed to show up for work the next morning, Golvin began looking for him and found him in the business district wearing a freshly pressed suit of clothes.

The police were called and when the suit was identified by its laundry mark, Burwell readily confessed.

OUTSTANDING SIGNIFICANCE

Boom-Bust Fears Fade As Prices Adjust

Many prices are not only due to come down—they have already declined drastically in many important instances.

For instance, in the case of the important cash crops, corn has declined 27% from its high point reached this year, wheat has dropped 30%, rye 46% and oats have actually declined more than 50%.

Because these figures have not yet been reflected in retail prices on a broad scale, the fact that this highly encouraging development has taken place is largely missed by Mr. and Mrs. consumer. Yet—unless all signs fail and the huge crops in prospect make a reversal of the outlook highly improbable—the wholesale price slashes will shortly be translated into lower food prices, with the exception of animal products. Meat—arch villain of the high cost of living—must wait until some time next year before it joins the more sensitive staples, including cotton, cottonseed oil and butter, in addition to the grains mentioned above.

NUGGET RECIPES

Have some entertaining you want to do? Then invite the girls —and thir husbands, too—over for dessert. It's an original, simple and courteous way to handle summer entertaining, says Reba Staggs, food authority.

A refreshing beverage, such as spiced hot tea or cold fruit punch, is the only accompaniment you need. Your dessert, be it a plate of extra-special cookies, a rich refrigerator dessert or an elegant cake, such as this Banana Cake, is the most important part of the affair.

Banana Cake

3 cups sifted enriched cake flour
2 teaspoons soda
1 cup lard
2 cups sugar
¾ cup milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1½ cups mashed bananas (3 or 4)

Line bottoms of three 9-inch cake pans with wax paper. Sift together cake flour and soda. Cream lard thoroughly. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Add 2 tablespoons milk, then slightly beaten eggs. Add dry ingredients and remaining milk alternately, beating thoroughly after each addition. Fold mashed bananas into batter. Pour batter into cake pans. Bake in a moderately hot oven (350°F.) for 25 to 30 minutes. Frost with a cream cheese frosting.

WELL-ROUNDED DIET

Right eating is the best health insurance in the world. This does not mean a special diet is necessary. Rather, eating a natural, well-rounded assortment of foods is the best wey to keep your health. And this is certainly far more pleasant than other means, points out Reba Staggs, home economist.

Each group of foods in a well-rounded diet contributes to good health. For example, meat is considered one of the most important protective foods because it supplies generous amounts of the B vitamins so necessary to health and functioning of the body; of iron, particularly in variety meats; and of the top-quality protein essential to body health and growth. In fact, meat and protein have become almost synonymous because meat supplies much good protein.

In addition to its place in the daily food of the well person, meat is important to infants and children during growth; to babies and mothers during pregnancy and the nursing period; to persons attempting to gain or lose weight, and to those who are recovering from wounds, burns or diseases. So meat is good health insurance.

Fruits and vegetables, too, are important or their many varied minerals and vitamins which keep the body well regulated and in tip-top shape. Liberal servings are suggested each day.

Dairy products, including milk and milk products, and eggs, contribute certain specific vitamins, such as A and D, as well as fat and protein. Poultry and fish are also suggested for their protein contributions.

Fats and sweets are essential for their energy-giving value, and for the variety and palatability they often add to food. Whole-grain cereals and breads add valuable amounts of vitamins B and some protein, as well as considerable bulk, to the diet.

If you, as the family's menu-planner, are preparing meals that include liberal amounts of each of these foods regularly, you are doing your family the best possible service.

APPLE MUFFINS

Apple muffins are easily made by adding a cupful of chopped apple and a tablespoon of sugar to a plain muffin batter made with two cups enriched flour. Brown sugar, with a dash of cinnamon added, gives the muffins a good flavor.

SANDWICH IDEAS

Put highly nutritious and satisfying sandwiches into the school lunch box. Meat and fish, cheese, eggs, and peanut butter are all fine basic fillings, and the enriched bread supplies energy, important B vitamins, and iron. A favorite "scholar's sandwich" is ham and cheese in a bun, or a liverwurst and tomato combination. Sardine, egg salad, and cream cheese and jelly sandwiches are others which can be prepared often. Occasionally, for variety, include a baked bean sandwich seasoned with chili sauce and thinly sliced onion .

AFTER-SCHOOL TREAT

For an after-school treat, serve filled fruit cookies with mugs of milk. Try thick tart applesauce from early fall apples, or a mixture of peanut butter, dates, brown sugar and butter as the filling for this type of cookie. These fruit "tarts" pack well and will be greeted with delight when mailed to the young college set away at school.

Garbage Can A Public Menace, Says Wm. T. Martin

GRASS VALLEY: A skull-and-crossbone label on every garbage can in the country has been proposed "to arouse the nation against one of the most potentially dangerous public enemies we ever faced."

The suggestion was made by William T. Martin of Bond's Radios and Appliances.

"'What happens to food waste as it becomes garbage is a serious and constant threat to public health," Martin declared. "But there is a definite solution to the problem today. Now, individually we have the means of immediately disposing of food waste mechanically, into sewage systems, the same as we dispose of body waste. We can thus rid ourselves forever of the nuisance and peril of the garbage can, the manual collection of garbage and filthy alleys."

The local man called upon public health authorities to take the lead in demanding installation of kitchen waste disposer devices nd "the end of the garbage can."

Food waste disposers are now available to the public and are easily installed in homes or commercial establishments, Martin pointed out. These devices permit the disposition of food wastes into the sewage system before it becomes garbage.

He pointed out that mechanical food disposers reduce kitchen wastes before it becomes garbage, to a fluid-like consistency easily handled and treated by existing sewage systems.

Veterans' News

The majority of veterans attending colleges and universities full-time under the G-I Bill will be able to work part-time without having their subsistence allowances reduced, according to Robert P. Shields, Veterans Administration Regional manager.

No reduction in subsistence will be made as long as income from productive labor and subsistence allowances does not exceed these monthly "ceilings" established by law last spring: (1) $210 a month for a veteran without dependents; (2) $270 for a veteran with one dependent; or (3) $290 for a veteran with more than one dependent.

This does not mean that there is a limit on what a veteran may earn while attending college full-time. It does mean that a veteran student may receive his full subsistence allowance if his monthly earnings are not more than $135 if he has no dependents, $165 if he has one dependnet and $170 if he has more than one dependent.

For full-time training in colleges or universities, a veteran may receive $75 a month subsistence if he has no dependents, $105 if he has one dependent, and $120 a month if he has more than one dependent.

Shields pointed out that student veterans can simplify and speed up the payment of their subsistence allowances by submitting all necessary papers to the school at the time they register.

Papers which should be submitted by the veteran at the time of registration are:

1. For veterans enrolling in training for the first time a certiffcate of eligibility from the VA and proof of any dependents. Dependency proof usually consists of marrige or birth certificates.

2. Veterans who are changing schools this fall must submit a supplemental certificate of eligibility from VA and proof of any dependents acquired since they last attended school.

Some schools are not permitting veterans to enroll under the G-I Bill, even though they attended the same school last spring, until they prove that they have not used up their educational entitlement under the G-I Bill, Shields pointed out.

Shields stressed the importance of veterans filing proof of dependency since the VA cannot pay increased subsistence for dependents until that proof is received.

Original certificates of eligibility and supplemental certificates may be obtained at the nearest VA office and veterans who have not done so should apply for them immediately.

Increased rates of compensation for widows, children and dependent parents of deceased veterans who died as the result of injury or disease incurred in or aggravated by active service will go into effect September 1, 1948, the Veterans Administration announced today.

The increase will be automatic, and will be paid in checks mailed out at the end of the month. The increased rates apply to service-connected death compensation payable to dependents of veterans who served in the armed forces in either war or peacetime.

The new schedule of monthly payments (with existing rates shown in parentheses)is as follows:

Wartime rates: widow but no child, $75 ($60); widow with one child, $100 ($78); plus $15 ($15.60) for each additional child; no widow but one child, $587 ($30); no widow but two children, $82 ($45.60); no widow but three children, $106 ($57.60); plus $20 ($12) for each additional child; one dependent parent, $0 ($54); and two dependent parents, $35 ($30) each.

Peacetime rates, equalling 80 percent of the new wartime rates: widow but no child, $60 ($38); widow with one child, $80 ($49), plus $12 ($10) for each additional child; no widow but one child, $4.40 $19); no widow but two children, $65.60 ($28); no widow but three children, $84.80 ($36); plus $16 ($88) for each ddtional child; one dependent parent, $48 ($30); and two dependent parents, $28 (20) each.

Are "Limners" Extinct?

"To all gentlemen and others—portrait painting and Engraving, Heraldry and House-painting will be undertaken and performed by me at lowest rates." Thus advertised one B. Roberts of Charleston in the South Carolina Gazette of May. 1735. And no doubt Mr. Robert's announcement brought to his studio a steady flow of customers, for here was the colonial counterpart of our modern portrait photographer.

The history of American art is full of episodes, both legendary and factual, to stir the imagination. Certainly none of these stories is more typically American in spirit than the account of the colonial "limners." This was the name given a group of eighteenth century American artists dealing in commercial portraiture, and these men have become, to art historians, our American primitives.

Methods and techniques may have changed, but the commodity remains. People have always delighted in pictures of themselves and their loved ones; so it was only natural the colonial "limner" should have been commercially successful. Financial success was usually his for a variety of reasons, especially his versatility — portrait painter or house painter as you might wish—and his enterprising nature. He was ingenious, to say the least. When it was impossible for clients to come to his studio, our colonial "limner" would take his wares and travel from house to house and from town to town.

Traveling by means of a horse-drawn vehicle the "artist" would arrive in town with a stock of portraits, both "masculine" and "feminine" in which everything had been included but the faces. Upon such a dummy the head of a subject could be panted, the whole operation usually requiring no more than one sitting. Very rarely did the sitter pose for his body. Instead one might choose from a variety of poses and costumes and have the picture completed with his or her own likeness.

If one's tastes ran to lace collars, ruffles and other symbols of dignity the "limner" was well supplied with such trappings. It was a simple matter to satisfy one's vanity or social ambitions with such portraits. The impression of social position and wealth was frequently given by the painter to subjects who were very humble people, barely able to pay the usual price of from twenty-five to fifty dollars for this service.

People were no different in those days from people of our own time, who either in photograph or painting insist upon being made to appear as important and as attractive as the truth will possibly permit. This the painter knew, and he prepared accordingly. In winter time when travel was difficult he put in a supply of stock portraits; in summer he took to the road with his wares and reaped a rich harvest.

Colonial America supported many itinerant "limners" of this type, a number of whom became, in spite of their seasonal rovings, identified with localities in which they enjoyed a reputaton not only as artists but as talented contributors to other cultuural and social activities.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS COST OVER BILLION

Traffic accidents during 1947 were responsible for an estimated $1,100,000,000 property damage, reports National Automoblie Club. To the cost of damaged property must be added an additional $1,550,000,000 to cover medical expenses chargeable against automobile accident claims and the value of services lost to the country both during the year and in later years, because of death or disablement. Estimated loss for deaths alone has been estimated at $30,000,000 by the National Safety Council.

An increase in reportable property damage accidents is noted. Because property values and repair costs have soared since the war, many accidents that would have previously been considered negligible have become within necessary reporting range.

Increased mileage rolled up by the automobiles today shows a reflection in the number of deaths as the result of increased traffic volume. During 1925, for example, 19 out of 100,000 persons were killed in motor vehicle accidents; however, in 1947, 22.5 out of every 100,000 persons met their deaths in automobile accidents. Basing deaths on mileage records rather than population figures, however, there is an encouraging note. For example, if the 1925 record of 19 persons killed for every 100,000,000 miles of travel was continued during 1947, National Automobile Club declares the result would have been the death in motor vehicle accidents of about 50 individuals out of every 100,000 for the year.

Alcohol still plays an important role in traffic deaths, for a survey of 23 states for 1947 indicates that about 19 percent of drivers involved in fatal accidents had been drinking and almost 24 percent of the adult pedestrians killed in motor vehicle accidents had been drinking. In one-quarter of the fatal accidents, a driver or a pedestrian was reported to have been drinking.

in the hills, and as he was anxious to spend the Christmas holidays with his fiancee, he asked me if I would come up and take his place for a month while he went below to visit his lady.

After he came back, I was acquainted enough with the management to secure a job as solution man in the mill, so I stayed on through the winter.

The Valcalda mill had been designed by a man who later became a first class attorney. He had evidently missed his vocation as a designer of mills, and some of us had to pay the penalty.

The foreman of the mill was a quick-tempered Irishman by the name of Pat O'Brien, and his job was to tear down the plant and rebuild it while it was running, and try to save as high a percentage of the values in the ore as possible, while he was doing it. As the mill required complete rebuilding and the installation of new equipment, this was quite an undertaking. The net result was that all of the crew was working under strain, trying to make unusable equipment and ill-designed buildings carry on with ore extraction while new equipment was being introduced. We all worked long hours and our tempers were not of the best, including that of the foreman.

It was a winter of heavy snow and cold, biting wind. The water lines froze, and some twenty-five men in one little bunkhouse had to get all water for cooking and drinking, as well as water for washing clothes, from melting tubs of snow over a hot stove. The result was that when our clothes became too dirty, we merely gave them a rest for a few days.

I eventually landed on the graveyard shift—going to work at midnight and coming off at eight in the morning. For some reason best known to himself, the mill foreman kept me on this shift after my two weeks was up. He worked at the mill on both day and afternoon shifts, and apparently left it to me to keep things going for the other eight hours. My stay lasted for one month, and finally three, and sleep became harder and harder to get as the sun came up earlier. I used to get home through the snowdrifts to the bunkhouse about eight thirty, eat a cold breakfast and drop into bed exhausted at nine in the morning, only to wake about eleven and find myself walking around my room, trying to reach a supposed lever or turn a valve on the filter press which I had brought along in my dreams.

To make matters worse, as spring drew on I received a letter from my old partner, Tip, who had gone up to Siskiyou County fishing at the close of his college term. His father was superintendent of the Nordheimer mine over on the Salmon River, and he was enthusiastic about the beauty and comfort of the country.

Your Home

By Frances Ainsworth SC

One of the clubs to which I belong held a special meeting recently on "The Art of Home Decorating", and Mrs. Hays, our chairman, told us that this program was made possible by one of the country's large paint companies. Many companies are now supplying material such as this on subjects of interest to all homemakers.

This particular program gave us the entire story on paint for home decoration, presented in four sections. The first dealt with the history of color and paint, and we were fascinated to learn about the earliest paints — where they came from and so on. The next section covered modern paint and its application. Did you know that paint not only protects our homes and makes them more attractive, but actually makes them safer by pointing out spots of danger?

The third section was extremely interesting . . . describing various types of paints and where they should be used. Not only where, but exactly how to use them; something every homemaker should know. The fourth section was on "The Science of Color Dynamics" . . . how to use color to best advantage for beauty and for the psychological reaction of the members of your household.

Each talk was presented with the help of special full-color cards, a movie, and booklets for every member, which were all furnished by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company.

The program was very interesting and certainly constructive. Now that we know that companies will help us plan our club meetings, we're going to have several more along the same line.

GAME WARDENS NAB 23 SPOTLIGHTERS

SAN FRANCISCO: The old but dishonorable practice of shooting deer at night—generally with a spotlight—is proving expensive for Fish and Game Code violators throughout the state.

During the last 30 days, wardens of the California Division of Fish and Game have apprehended a total of 23 night shooters, with an average cost to each violator of $167.

Assistant Chief of Patrol W. J. Harp believes the high number of arrests for illegal deer hunting may be influenced by the current high cost of meat. He said state wardens, in close liaison with county law enforcement officials, will continue to keep the cost of illegal venison well above the retail cost of other meats.

Among recent violators of deer hunting laws are:

J. F. Feely and Jack Comer, both of San Franrisio, who were assessed fines of $250 each in the sourt of Judge Stokes in Lake County. The spotlight hunters were arrested near Elk Mountain by Warden Douglas Dowell.

N. F. Gibson of Pudding Creek was apprehended by Warden Holmes at Ross Ranch, Mendocino County, and fined $50 in the court of Judge Gildersleeve.

Four Los Angeles County spotlighters were fined $50 each in the court of Judge McDowell after their arrest by Warden Leslie F. Edgerton. Violators were R. H. Roy and J. J. Anderson, both of Torrance, H. B. Mullens, Lomita, and W. Perkins of Wilmington.

A fine of $250 each was imposed on G. McGuire and H. McGuire both of Wheatland, when they appeared before Nevada County Judge Morehouse. The spotlighters were arrested by Wardens Ed Dennett and Earl Hiscox.

Fines of $250 each were also given J. Earp and D. Plummer, both of Hayward, and P. Adams and H. Adams, both of Middleton, for spotlight hunting in Lake County. Arrests were made by Wardens Jack Sawyer and Douglas Dowell. Sentence was passed by Justice John Irwin.

Judge Irwin also assessed $150 fines on N. Chapman and C. Stone of Oakland after their arrest for spotlighting on Bucksnort Creek. Warden Sawyer made the arrests.

Three Sacramentans contributed $100 each to the Wildlife Preservation Fund of Glenn County when they were found guilty of spotlighting by Judge Callender. Arrests were made by Warden James Hiller. Fined were P. E. Corn, V. M. Matthews, and D. V. Lines.

STATEHOOD. On September 9th California celebrates its 98th birthday. Prior to statehood, the people were heavily taxed without representation, and though San Francisco had been made a port of entry, no Territorial government had been provided. On November 13, 1849, after several unsuccessful attempts at state making, a constitution, in which slavery was prohibited, was adopted and on September 9th, 1850, California entered the Union.

DEATHS. During the past few weeks the passing of noted people took place. National, international and of the sports world. All rated front page space. In the county the passing of pioneers took place. They didn't rate front page stories. But in their own way, during their long lives, they contributed much to their country. Good citizenship. Children, who have grown into fine men and women. They knew what good neighborhood policies meant long before "Good Neighbors" became a national slogan. It is such county people who keep a state and nation strong and secure for the things and rights we cherish.

GOLD. Under the date line of Washington, September 3, the Commerce Department reported that Mexico shipped $5,675,148 in gold to this country during the week ending August 18. That $11,713,379 was received from South Africa and $2,053,811 from Colombia. The department stated that the United States shipped $40,000,000 in Gold to Venezuela and $5,626,380 to Switzerland during the week.

OCCUPATION. Rusty, the cat, has tipped us off that if this is your birth date you will excel as a critic of the work of others either in art, literature or business. You will also do good in the advertising field or as a social service worker. But, she warns, you have a bad habit to overcome, that of being too fussy.

Just Wonderin'

I Wonder about foolish sheep
And shrewd bell wethers too;
I Wonder at the trusting things
A flock of sheep will do.
Sometimes we follow like the sheep
The one who wears a bell,
And how he'll lead us, yes and where
'Tis only time can tell.

I presume that nowhere in the animal kingdom is there a creaure more blandly and bleatingly docile as the sheep. Unless he is a bellwether and a dictator in his own right, the sheep is sadly lacking in initiative, he uses no modicum of reason and is content to follow his leader at all times and under all circumstances.

I have nothing against the wooly sheep; the young of his tribe are not only appealing in their unsuspicious innocence, they are also amusing and they do improve a rural landscae to a degree; but, when the lambkin matures and becomes a solid and stolid member of the flock—his only interest seems to be in wool growing and in the selection of the phosphates and other substances which make up his preferred diet.

A flock of sheep will follow the bellwether unhesitatingly and without rhyme or reason. He may lead his followers to lush green meadows, to grassy hill slopes, to sarkling streams and rustling shade, or he may make his way over barren terrain, through muddy waters and into slimy and unsavory quagmires, it is all the same to his trusting flock; if he should, in a moment of desperation, plunge over a steep escarpment and fall into a rock ribbed canyon the simple flock would follow suit. "Their's not to reason why," blind obedience is the motto, to the sheep the bellwether is infallible whether for good or ill, his ways are the ways of the flock.

We should not make fun of the sheep. for we humans are at times prone to exhibit many of their traits of character. Even now, we are aligning ourselves under the banners of our chosen leaders and whither they go, there we go also. We shall listen in the weeks to come to their stirring oratory and in our enthusiasm we will exclaim admiringly, "atta boy," "you tell 'em," and other empty phrases, but seldom will we retire to a good quiet spot and with open minds, analyze and thoroughly weigh campaign arguments by the light of that little flame of reason which each one of us may or may not tend as conscience dictates.

Were nature to produce a sheep with a man's brain, a myriad things might happen while all the world would join me in wonderin'. When nature produces a man with a sheep's brain—and she sometimes does—nothing happens and no one is even moderately concerned. The man with a sheep's outlook on life slips easily into a club, a fraternal organization, an association or a political party and thereafter functions according to the rules of his chosen bellwether. So goes the world of sheep and sheep-like people and perhaps they are just as happy as though they put up a brain and under the arduous task of doing their own thinking. Still, who wants to be a sheep or a sheep-like human?

Uncle Silas says: "I asked A. M. C. if it wasn't sort of sheep-like to go on doing the same things week after week, say writing Just Wonderin'? She hasn't answered yet."

Adeline Merriam Conner.

A touch and you GO— that's DYNAFLOW!

YES, it boils down to just about that. You start your engine, set a lever — and from then on your treadle foot takes over.

You press the accelerator — and move softly and smoothly away.

You speed up, slow down, halt completely — and your right foot alone, operating gas treadle and brake, does it all.

How come? Simply because Dynaflow Drive is the one passenger car drive in America that gets completely away from gears which function in fixed stages.

Changes in the way oil flows, instead of changes in gears, adjust your engine power to your driving requirements.

Whether you are starting out, climbing a hill, surging past others or cruising easily, there's nothing for you to do except feed gas.

For very fast starts, extreme pulls, reserve braking power, you flick the selector lever—and your engine seems suddenly to double in size.

For parking, there is a very special setting, exclusive to Dynaflow Drive, that rigidly locks rear wheels.

Even rough and chattery roads are made smoother by power that flows along through a cushion of oil — your whole car is "sweeter" in its feel, far silkier in its actions.

Quite rightfully is Dynaflow Drive called the most important development since the self-starter.

It's a basically different way of transmitting power — and one you should know about firsthand.

See what your Buick dealer can do about arranging that for you. The merest sample of Dynaflow magic will make you want to place an order pronto, whether or not you have a car to trade!

Here's your Buick Dealer's Four-Square Selling Policy

SUPERVISORS DECLINE TO DIVIDE GOLD FLAT DISTRICT

NEVADA CITY: The Nevada County Board of Supervisors last Thursday refused to divide the Oakland (Gold Flat) School district as had been requested by a large percentage of the Town Talk and Glenwood Heights residents.

The vote stood Supervisors Cary Arbogast and Frank Rowe for division and Supervisors Warren Odell, Henry G. Loehr, and Jerome C. Coughlan against.

The chairman of the board, Odell, declared that he considered the two factions should forget their differences and act unanimously in building a better school in Gold Flat. He stated that the school, due to an influx of population, is now one of the largest in the county, and the residents of the district should pull together to make it one of the best.

Robert Hanley, one o fthe Gold Flat school trustees, declared they had consulted members of the Nevada City School Board informally and the latter had promised to work with them in affording bus service.

Hanley said that this year approximately 140 pupils are expected to enroll and that an extra teacher will be employed, making the school staff 5. Carroll Rogers and R. R. Lewis, proponents of the division, expressed their disappointment at the failure of their petition to carry .

CAR BLOCKS VIEW AS FOOTPADS ROB MCKINSEY MOTORS

GRASS VALLEY: McKinsey Motors, the Kaiser-Frazer distributing firm here, was robbed Wednesday night of last week of $173 in cash and several checks. The thieves worked behind a car parked in the rear to cut off the view from the street.

Entrance was obtained by removing a pane of glass from a window. Ronald McKinsey immediately notified the police. They found the drawers of his desk tumbled about. The office had been thoroughly ransacked. The checks stolen were ordered stopped at the banks.

LOOKING AHEAD

BY GEORGE S. BENSON

Searcy, Arkansas

Snafu, Snarlieu

The French Government would like very much to get 500 new dwelling units put up in Paris, for Paris is home to nearly 3,000,000 Frenchmen. Paris is terribly overcrowded. This fabulous city would like to have room for tourists and visitors, too. But, unfortunately, France is a country where the government "controls" things, and things are in a snarl. Housing is one thing controlled by the government. Housing, alas, is in a snarl.

To build 500 units of "public" housing, the government would have to have money. But the national budget is already loaded down. In France, there are salaries of multitudes of government employees, there are pensions, and there are numerous other things the government is doing for the people. All these things cost money. In fact, costs to the government of France are legion. The government figured it could run things properly, and it is still spending.

Enterprise Deceased

But, alas, the money for the needed 500 units cannot be found. Well, why does not free enterprise do it? In France there is hardly such a thing as free and private enterprise. The government, you see, has made laws against this and that. It is still all right to own property, but it is getting mighty unpopular. Even so, a group of property owners has proposed to build some rental housing, if the government will let them.

These private owners have asked to build this housing on a nonprofit basis, without any return on investment, if the government will permit them to collect rents to cover maintenance and depreciation. This is the kind of situation that exists in a country where government management is the order of the day. In France, a man spends three times as much a year for his pipe tobacco as he does for his house rent. (Tobacco is plentiful, but houses are scarce.)

Under "Control"

In fact, rents are cheap in France. But then, you see, everything is in a snarl. Housing and rentals of all kinds are shrinking to the vanishing point. Rent is very well controlled. The average worker is said to be paying from 1 to 2 per cent of his annual wages for rent. Even a well-to-do family that makes about $5,000 a year, pays only $45 a year for five rooms and bath. Their bill for tobacco is likely to run higher!

Of course, there isn't much housing, and not likely to be much more. The government cannot build, because it cannot afford the costs. Private interests cannot build, because the government will not let them. Moreover, nobody wants to build. Anyone who owns property, especially property for rent, is looked upon with suspicion. It is said that property owners who rent are popularly known as "vultures." The joy of owning a cottage is fading away.

Guardsmen Are Spare Time Solders And Airmen

Most people have a spare time avocation which benefits only themselves. The men of the National Guard take part of their spare time for an avocation which benefits both themselves and the nation.

Every member of the Guard reports to his armory or his air base for training with his unit at least once a week. During that training period, he gets nistruction and practice in a variety of skills which are used not only in military operations but also in civilian life. He also gets one day's regular Army or Air Force pay for each training period.

Guardsmen in Army units are trained in motor mechanics, in radio and communications, in supply procedures, in administration, and even in cooking and mess management. All of these, and other skills are needed to make a modern Army unit operate. Guardsmen get this training as well as training in the use of weapons.

In the air units. Guardsmen are taught aircraft repairs, service and maintenance ,traffic control, radar operation, and many other skills which are basic to aviation operation. In many respects, a National Guard squadron is an airline in miniature, with all its phases of operation.

In addition to their weekly training periods, Guardsmen also take part of their spare time for two week summer training periods in camp. This is the climax of the year's training, when all of the weekly instruction can be tried out through intensive practice under field conditions.

Many employers assist their Guardsmen employees through the granting of military leave for summer camps in addition to regular vacations. The common type of military leave is that by which the company makes up the difference between regular pay and Guard pay for th period.

ASTHENOPIA

[EYESTRAIN]

Tonight in thousands of rooms considered "well lighted" young eyes are being harmed by light that is either too dim or is raw, harsh and glaring.

Improper lighting is a principal cause of eyestrain with accompanying headache and drowsy fatigue. In severe cases eyes should be examined and glasses prescribed. But in all cases light must be right—better light for better sight.

EYESTRAIN PICKS IT'S VICTIMS YOUNG

1 of every 5 children in grade school suffers from hmf vision. Poor lighting causes unnecessary eyestrain.

2 out of 5 college graduates have defective sight . . . a result which good lighting might have helped to prevent.

Protect young eyes these 4 ways: 1. Provide a good study lamp for the students in your home. 2. Make sure each lamp has a bulb of the right size. 3. Be sure the light is diffused—not glaring. 4. Clean lamp shade and reflector bowl for better, whiter light.
